SPATIAL & TACTICAL DECONSTRUCTION

- Damian Rasak (#6) registers the highest degree centrality, completing 82 total passes.
- Strongest combination: Rasak to Hellebrand (32 passes) establishes midfield dominance.
- Left-sided bias evident: Janža (74 passes) and Lukoszek create superior pass volume.
- Team centroid sits at X=51.2m, indicating a high defensive line and territorial control.
- Convex hull outfield footprint of 1,220 m² ensures high compression in transition.

SPATIAL & TACTICAL DECONSTRUCTION

- Left half-space generates the highest Expected Threat (+0.42 xT), driven by Podolski.
- Left flank represents the highest volume corridor with 94 completed vertical passes.
- Erik Janža successfully executes 8 cross-field switches to isolate Taofeek Ismaheel.
- Central spine penetration remains measured (52 passes) to mitigate turnover counter-attacks.
- Opposition low blocks are stretched horizontally via rapid 2-touch flank relocations.

Passing Topology & Distribution Channel Summary

Pillar 2: Passing Networks & Structure • Key Takeaways & Recommendations

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY & METHODOLOGY

Passing network topology provides a direct visual readout of a team's tactical connectivity and tactical centroid. Damian Rasak functions as the undisputed distribution engine of Górnik Zabrze, registering 82 passes and linking the defensive backline to attacking half-spaces. The team maintains an expansive 1,220 m² outfield convex footprint, allowing rapid horizontal ball circulation to manipulate opposition pressing traps.

SPORTING DIRECTOR & COACHING ACTIONS

Centrality Reliance: High dependency on Damian Rasak: opposition man-marking schemes must be countered with third-man drop-ins.

Flank Channel Overload: 94 progressive passes executed through the left flank, creating high-percentage diagonal delivery channels.

Cross-Field Switches: Janža-to-Ismahheel switches (8 completions) present high-threat isolation against retreating low blocks.
